Types of Layers Photoshop layers are a special type of object in which you are able to overlay multiple layers of effects. Each layer is named with a different color, or named with the type of paint or pastel color associated with it. An image may be composed of many different layers. It is possible to create a layer that appears transparent, or even generate an entirely transparent image. ## Compose Your Photo It's important that your photo be the right size so that you can use all of the useful tools without having to crop the image (see Figure 5-1). FIGURE 5-1 The file you are working with should be smaller than 14 megapixels (or megas) so that you can see the entire image when you work on it. If it's larger than 14 megapixels, crop the photo down to size. You can crop any photo, even your own, by entering the Crop tool in the same way that you crop a canvas; see the "Use the Crop Tool" section later in this chapter.

As a passionate manga reader, I want to develop an instinctual need to understand Japanese culture, history, and literature. To do so, I have been studying the works of Japanese artist Yukio Oda and his art collection, Oda-no-Mikoto (after the Shinto deity of fertility, war, and the country; 漢字漢). Intellectually, Oda's artworks often point to and represent Japanese values and mores; socially, his works are an expression of his overarching desire for the creation of Japan. Oda's presentation of manga within the context of his art collection makes me ask my own questions: How do manga creators present the message and art of Japan? Are they as conscious of the Japanese art and history that surrounds them as Oda? How does Oda-no-Mikoto influence Oda's art and Japanese pop culture? Oda-no-Mikoto Oda-no-Mikoto was commissioned by Oda's publisher by his grandfather, Toru Tamura, in 1928. Images from Oda-no-Mikoto remain within the Tamura Corporation, and are exhibited as an art collection in Tokyo. Oda refers to it as "my collection," highlighting its importance to his life. The collection was officially opened to the public in March, 1928. Its first exhibition, held in the Biwako Theatre (漢字漢), was an opportunity to introduce Oda-no-Mikoto to the world. The exhibition was inaugurated with the slogan "Japan's Man and His World of Art" (漢字漢字漢字漢字漢字漢). In 1929 the exhibition travelled to Osaka, Nagoya, Yokohama, and Fukushima. One of Oda's panels for Oda-no-Mikoto, titled "Promise" (漢字), features a woman and a baby. The woman is wearing traditional clothing with her face painted in a god's mask, her hair decorated in the style of a samurai headdress, and her body painted as if to be a shrine maiden. This image serves to relate to the female child, as a pious woman. The child is holding a pig, evoking the Chinese notion of a son being born with a pig as his auspicious tal

The accident was caught on video and posted on Facebook by one of the actors. Actor Kenton Duty was performing a stunt in the production of Aquaman at the Hamilton Playhouse on Wednesday when he lost control of the motorcycle, hitting three other actors. A Hamilton police report obtained by Now News does not say if Duty was wearing a helmet, but Duty has not confirmed that. That report, filed with EPS on July 19, says Duty was driving at an excessive speed and lost control of the Harley Davidson Road King motorcycle. Duty was thrown from the motorcycle, landed in the theatre's stairwell and was taken to hospital with "several fractures to his face." He told police he had come to

Hamilton as a tourist from Toronto and that he had never been on a Harley before. The report says he told police that he had been on stage before he was forced to stop the stunt. Duty did not respond to a Now News request for comment Thursday. The actors were rehearsing a scene involving a motorcycle chase. An actor from the Hamilton Police Service was in the theatre during the incident and may be questioned. According to an EPS statement, two of the injured actors were taken to hospital with injuries that were not considered life-threatening. Police said the incident occurred in the middle of rehearsals. There was no risk to the public and the theatre was closed while police investigated. Now News has learned that the producers, Richard Doonan and Corinne Brannon, are in the process of pulling out of the production, which is now on hiatus. In their Monday statement, Doonan and Brannon said an investigation was underway and had determined that "no laws had been broken." "In an unfortunate turn of events, an actor was severely injured during the production," the producers said. "Though we can't comment on specific details of the accident or what was involved in the production, we are required to disclose to you that we are taking steps to remove our production from the Playhouse." According to Hamilton council documents obtained by Now News, the Playhouse had a licence to run a theatre until Aug. 17. The Hamilton Theatre League is in the process of negotiating with the Hamilton Playhouse to determine whether the Playhouse can operate as a theatre "amidst what appears to be very tight fiscal times." The producer said they were still in talks and declining to comment further
