The comparison function is based on the prices of 174 private label products of 7 market research and price comparison companies. BILD Tageszeitung would like to thank the brands and retailers for their cooperation.

However, BILD Tageszeitung can also detect that, in some cases, the discount providers themselves are asking for higher prices than they would normally agree to for branded products. According to BILD, Aldi and Lidl have the highest average discount rates among private-label suppliers, but within a year they have increased the prices of brand-protected products by an average of 11 percent. In the second half of the year, BILD went further than the other newspapers; for over half of the products, the discounter became more expensive. However, there is an almost opposite effect for wholesalers. They have become 30 percent cheaper in the consumer's eyes during the second half. How and where can YOU save energy, for example when shopping, cooking What does the state have to change BILD readers can ask their questions at the big anti-expensive summit on Friday from 10am to 12pm Among others with the price expert Sven Reuter (CEO of the price info app smhaggle): 01802 00 2903 According to the survey by the price comparison app Smhaggle for the Lebensmittel Zeitung (LZ), the prices of private-label products rose by an average of 23 percent in the first half of this year, compared with an increase of 11 percent for name brands. In the first half of last year, the retail price of own-brand products had risen by 12 percent, compared with a growth of 6 percent for name brands.
