the vpn location in the advanced settings section is the vpn server your device connects to, and this is normally the location of your ip address. in this case, this means that your device is connecting to a vpn server in the uk, which is a good start, but we recommend that you use a vpn location that is closer to your destination. we recommend selecting a server in the uk because this will save you on data costs. in this case, you will need to change the vpn location to a country that has a good number of servers in the location you want to travel to. as you can see from the screenshot above, the first server listed is a uk server. this will save you on roaming charges, which will be listed in the uk. if you want to connect to an irish server, you will need to change this to ireland. another benefit is that you can make your browser cache your traffic. this will help you to avoid bandwidth limits when you connect to a website. a third benefit of a vpn is that you can access geo-restricted content. as we mentioned earlier, when you are connected to a vpn, the website you connect to will see your vpn address instead of your actual address. if you are traveling overseas, you may need to pay for data roaming charges. if you are connecting through the uk, this will be around 10gbp, or around $13.50. however, if you are connecting through a server in another country, such as ireland, it will be much cheaper. if you are connecting to a server in the usa, you will need to check your contract with your mobile provider to find out how much data you are allowed to use. if you are connected to the uk for around 10gbp, your data use will be limited to just 10gbp, which is much cheaper than paying the higher roaming charges.
