You sent me a report and I was able to solve the problem and get back to him." "Thanks for the quick response. It's very important to get this right, and if it's not working correctly it can seem a little like a mystery that nobody is able to explain." "I just wanted to let you know that I have had no problems with your program." "Thank you very much for sending that report to me. I have sent it to a few others, and they are very impressed with how it works." "I have not had any problems with your program. I use the program now and the remote connection is very good. Thanks!" "I was not able to get the system to work as the first people I called did not have the program installed. The client was able to connect within 10 minutes of calling and was very happy with the program." "I have had no problems with the program, and the connection is great." "The connection is great, and I have had no problems with the program." "I have had no problems with your program." "Thanks for the help with this! I thought you might have some experience with this program as I could not get the program to work for them but I was able to connect in about 10 minutes. I have sent you a couple of good reviews, and will let them know that you were helpful." "Thanks

...Q: "Expression must have class or type" error on a declared array in VB.NET I am receiving the error Expression must have class or type on the following declaration: Dim arr() as Integer I know this is the correct way to declare an array in VB.NET, but I get the error when I try to run it in the IDE. Can anyone see why this is happening? A: I have to do this to generate arrays for data sets. It works. Dim arr() As Integer

Disseminated cystic acanthamoeba keratitis: report of a case in a child and review of the literature. We report a case of disseminated, bilateral cystic, anterior corneal infiltrates in an 8-year-old girl that developed after brief, unprotected contact with a freshwater lake. The infiltrate was initially misdiagnosed as herpetic keratitis. We believe this is the first reported case of disseminated cystic acanthamoeba keratitis in a child.
