Unlike previous years where they were drawn out to three hours and featured fifty-two songs, “Hear Now” was cut in half, making it the shortest episode ever. Thus, the winner would take home the pair of headphones in this year’s contest. But instead of touching each other, the winners would each take a pair of headphones, and the losing pair of headphones would go back to the winner. As the song started to play, Dave Azagury of the oldster band Opeth and the fresh and young newcomer Kip Jang were the first to begin. The song was dark, almost with a sense of impending doom, yet it was the height of beauty for Azagury who felt the song's emotions. A number of the band's songs were mentioned, including a couple that were later featured in the same year's "Hear Now" episode including "Still Life" from Balance and Composure and "Behind the Sun" from Magma. After Azagury, Kip Jang, the young boy, was the first to finish with an impressive rendition that filled the theater with euphoria. He complimented Opeth's "Still Life" and the band's "Ghost Reveries", which was probably the most popular song in the series. After all was said and done, it was basically a race to see who would be the winner. Kip Jang got down on his knees to go after the left headphone, but he didn't get it. The audience remained silent, but some might have been cheering for Azagury who received the right headphone
